Protecting the Environment of our City The City Council of Santa Cruz, California has launched an urban forestry campaign to improve the city's urban forests and to protect water quality. A new partnership between Santa Cruz's Recreation and Parks Department and the Natural Lands Conservancy will focus on gathering input from the public and neighborhood groups. The first meeting will be at 6 p.m. on Wednesday, Nov. 9, 2010, at Santa Cruz High School Auditorium, 901 Red Hill Avenue in Santa Cruz. The Urban Forestry Initiative is part of the City's Sustainable Communities Initiative, which promotes the environmental and economic health of its communities through strategic planning, land use, and public-private partnership. The initiative's goal is to create a 20-year plan to improve the city's parks, enhance the quality of life for its residents and enhance the natural beauty of the area's forests and green space. "I think it's going to be a great way to get information about what people want in our community," said Mayor Michela T. "Michelle" Alioto-Pier. "This is a natural way to let our community members know we're thinking about their health, their well-being, the value of our trees and to come together and get something positive for everyone to be involved in." The meeting will include information about the initiative's goals, vision and goals and will include an opportunity for stakeholders to provide input. The city's Rec and Parks Department is being supported by the Natural Lands Conservancy through the Sustainable Communities Grant Program.Q: Clausula WHERE en funcion de una variable Necesito hacer que una consulta dinámica pueda actualizar los valores de un campo a partir de una variable con el valor inicial y el valor al que lo quiero actualizar. Q: How does a constructor fill a static member I want to overload constructors so that they can take a "format string" to compose a string message. In other words, I want to have a createMessage method that will take a string and format it appropriately. The problem is, I don't know how to do this with constructors because: private members will not be initialized before the constructor starts executing. static members are initialized after all the classes have been loaded. On the other hand, if the constructor is a plain function, it needs to have access to the instance it is being called on. I realize I can do a combination of these two (private constructor, public static method), but I would much rather have one. How can I compose an instance with a message inside a constructor? A: I want to overload constructors so that they can take a "format string" to compose a string message. It's not a good idea to have constructors that have side effects that happen after the constructor completes. It's better to have a factory method: public string MyConstructor() { return CreateMessage(/.../); } Iceland's President Guðni Már Stefnsson has pledged to help persuade NATO to set up a war base on the tiny island of Skagafjord. The country's president has also vowed to seek parliamentary approval to set up a US airbase on the island. In a post to Twitter in Icelandic, Mr Stefnsson said he would urge the alliance to protect the country in its north by building a Nato base there. DUP leader Nigel Dodds says the DUP will not stand in the way of a decision to set up a base on the island. "The Icesave case in particular needs to be put to bed," Mr Dodds added. He said if a base on the island is set up, he hopes it will be a "long-term" one. Both the Democratic Unionist Party and Sinn Féin are against the move. Nationalist MP Stewart Dickson, meanwhile, has welcomed the idea of a base. He described it as a "great idea" and said there were "a lot of issues" to be resolved before it could happen. The plan Under Nato plans, a
