Three people, Gaspard (Eric Lartigau), Lucie (Marie-Jeanne Gayet) and Audrey (Léa Seydoux), on their way to a music festival are involved in a car accident that sends the woman to a coma. As her daughter, Mathilde (Alice Taglioni), watches, the injured woman's mother, Laene (Valérie Lemercier), brings her various spiritual guides and stand-ins into the situation, making some unnecessary bizarre requests. It all sounds a little too "Agnosia," a painful 2012 French film about the demonic encounters of a comatose woman and her mother. (The similarities go beyond the plot and title, as "Agnosia" featured a plot about a mother taking her comatose daughter's identity.) The only complaint I could think of is that I don't think the wings are supposed to be connected like that. The only other thing I could think of is that the ears appear to be upside down. That is just my opinion. The most important thing is that you are able to see what is going on, and the ears don't cover up the head. I would have liked to have seen a bit of movement in the background. I'm not sure if this has anything to do with the ears being upside down, but I thought I would mention it anyway.I think this is a good piece. The eyes were a bit difficult to make out, but I think it was worth it. The rest is fairly simple. I liked the features. I just wish it was a bit more consistent.
