No former Toronto police officer has the right to receive a fair trial," declared Toronto Police Association President Mike McCormack at a press conference today held to address the shock resignation of Toronto Police Chief, "Canada's worst cop," Julian Fantino. In a video statement obtained by The Star, Fantino said he was resigning as chief after eight years in an attempt to bring the Toronto Police to an ethical standard "unrivaled in Canada." Police union president McCormack said he was resigning as chief after eight years of fighting for the TPS to be "more than a vigilante group." Fantino was scathing in his remarks against the TPS. He called it Canada's "most corrupt police force" and "The most irresponsible organization I have ever been associated with." He also called for a re-organization of the Toronto Police Service. McCormack said they were looking for candidates to replace Fantino. As for the underling officers Fantino was speaking to, McCormack said they could face charges of assault, assault causing bodily harm and obstruction of justice. The Star contacted the police force on Monday afternoon for comment. According to a spokesperson, "No comment to CTV Toronto, they are a union." In his video statement, Fantino gave an example of a scandal that occurred in June 2010. "At the time we investigated allegations that an officer lied on his back injury on his employment application," explained Fantino. He called the case an "anomaly" that was unique, but also "reprehensible." "I want to know why it happened and I want to know what aa67ecbc25
