- The Stolen Shakespeare and Dangerous Women Wednesday, May 3, 2014 It was only after I arrived at the hospital to find a hissy fit playing out that I realized that Daughter Hell didn't arrive before. Or with the cutest of the cuty little socks after all. It was Good Friday and she was instructed to stay at home. Of course it took about 40 minutes for her to figure out that she could leave the house. But back she came and that was about 15 minutes before I left. We walked a few blocks to the church where she accidentally hit the young man on the head with her backpack. Not a scratch. "It's my backpack dad!" she yelled and pulled it around so that she held her head with an adorable wiggle-face. I love this girl! We entered our church and went to the front pew (door #1 on the side) to give blood and pray for this young man and the other kids in the service. But before we walked through the glass doors, we decided to walk up front. A God-moment. On the way to the front, Daughter Hell signed a picture for the young man she hit with her backpack, high-fived her new friend and explained that she is an ROTC and that it was the best rule because it isn't like the teacher told her to hit people. It was beautiful. So we prayed and then walked across the very hot church to go out the side pew (door #2 on the side) and climb into the van. We waved to the choir boy and daughter while exiting the near-the-stage singing, dancing. It is always good when I praise this young man that he sings and dances with his family. I would not have done the same for his own children. But I guess he "evens the playing field" since his parents are not of this world. This is such a cute church! Daughter Hell played smiley face with me just one more time before she went inside the van where she climbed all the way to the front where she made smiling faces with me and enjoyed playing with her Happy Meal just for a couple of minutes. Then it was time to leave. Daughter Hell rode up front to text with her little friend and her behind says something and I don't remember exactly what. Then her face presses up against the windshield and says, "These

Phylogeny of Lobelia (Lobeliaceae) based on three chloroplast DNA regions. The intergenic spacer between trnT-trnF (psbA-trnF) and the trnC-trnD intergenic spacer of the chloroplast genome, the 3' region of the trnT intron and the trnG intron (psbZ/trnG), were sequenced in 15 species of Lobelia and two outgroups (Narcissus cyclobanthus and Spathiphyllum wallisii). The partial cpDNA sequences of the 15 species formed a monophyletic group with strong statistical support. This suggests that Lobelia, is a monophyletic group. The relationships among the species of Lobelia based on three chloroplast DNA regions are inferred by a parsimony analysis using the software TREEANNOTATOR. Our results also support previous conclusions on the subgenus Lobelia. Islamic State extremists say that many of the dead in their latest attack on Parisians were French soldiers. With fresh heartbreak in Europe continuing, it was confirmed that two Western allies were among 129 people killed in Wednesday's atrocity. Algeria and Denmark confirmed that their citizens were among the dead while Belgian and US citizens were also confirmed as casualties. One Briton also died in the attack, and at least 22 other Westerners remain unaccounted for. In his strongest language yet about the Paris bloodshed,
