Description of the Related Art There is a pedal apparatus as disclosed in U.S. Pat. No. 5,829,341. This pedal apparatus is a pedal apparatus in which, for example, a brake pedal is supported by a horn switch device and a clutch pedal is supported by an accelerator switch device. In the case of a vehicle having a wide space of a foot board for a driver, when the brake pedal and the clutch pedal are supported by the horn switch device and the accelerator switch device, respectively, so as to extend parallel to each other, the possibility of the driver taking his/her foot off the brake pedal and the clutch pedal is increased and the operation of operating both pedals can be effected smoothly. In the above-described pedal apparatus, however, the brake pedal and the clutch pedal extend parallel to each other. Further, they are supported by the horn switch device and the accelerator switch device, respectively. Therefore, an interval between the brake pedal and the clutch pedal is widened. As a result, it is difficult to effect the operation of operating both pedals simultaneously, and as the distance between the operator's leg and the floor space is increased, the operator has difficulty in taking his/her foot off of the pedals. 7 Advantages of Real-Time Replication of Non-Real-Time Databases - tapageal ===== wmf It's amusing that they brought up SyncRouter since it was bought by PingDB a few years ago and essentially abandoned.
