Utterances of the content words in item pairs by French-language schizophrenic patients and their nonschizophrenic relatives. This study investigated the content-related psychopathology of emotionally loaded words in the verbal behavior of French-speaking schizophrenic patients and their nonschizophrenic relatives. The presence of a negative symptom on the Scale for the Assessment of Negative Symptoms was used to identify the schizophrenic patients. The study used 3 approaches: semantic differential ratings, frequency counts, and statistical analysis. Subjects were 33 schizophrenic patients and 20 relatives; the relatives served as controls. Schizophrenic patients and their relatives were rated for their content-related behaviors on the scale. The 3 word 6d1f23a050
