I am trying to compress a rar file using RAR Linux version 2.6.8, with a password. It seems to be working fine but I've noticed a behaviour which might need an explanation. I've successfully created a.rar file (compressed using the command line) and I've noticed that the file size is not as it should be (it is supposed to be around 220kb instead of the real one of 707kb). Why is this? And how can I get the real file size? Thanks for your help. A: The problem was that I was compressing the rar file with a temporary path, and didn't move the file, hence I was not able to see the real file size (the temporary directory didn't keep track of the file size). Even for an example-laden liturgy, the 1999 Requiem Mass took awhile to get going. The Curé of Ars (the Abbé Pierre Desroche) started off with a few old favorites, and then just wrote in these new ones: I Want to Be Happy, Be Well, Grow Old Or as the late Fr Raymond Spatola, the Curé of Ars, put it in an interview, "It's a reminder, of course, that all of our life's trials and tribulations are not necessarily worth it." The text of the Mass came from the Second Vatican Council (Gaudium et Spes), the great judgment and synthesis of the Council. Cardinal Joseph Ratzinger, then the Prefect of the Congregation for the Doctrine of the Faith, praised the Curé's translation as being so faithful that the translation was accepted by all the cardinals, when they met in Rome to vote on the text of the Council document. The Requiem Mass is said in memory of the dead, but not just the dead: it is for anyone who has died in the Catholic Church. And just as the Curé's version of the Requiem had a few changes, so the Curé of Ars carved in several more changes at the end: "For the living. For the living. For the living. For the living. For the living. For the living." When the Curé of Ars did the Requiem, he was one of the first in the world to have the benefit of the new translation of the Roman Missal c6a93da74d
